Leffler's arrest resulted from a meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association, held yesterday. Following the meeting several local merchants visited Leffler's exhibit of women's clothing at the Jefferson, and became convinced that he was conducting an illegal business. They communicated with Captain McMahon, who talked over the matter with them and assisted in arranging for the securing of evidence.

The former increase was 8 per cent, the latter, 12 per cent.

WORK OF TEACHERS

At this point the teachers came in for a liberal share of praise at the hands of the State superintendent. In this connection he added that the services rendered by the teachers were evidently appreciated, not only by himself, but by the people at large. As a proof of this, he cited the fact that during the 1913-14 session teachers' salarles had been increased $257.035.01.

The company was answering a call to Fifth and Everett Streets at the time. A pin in the steering gear broke and the machine became unmanageable. It plunged into the wall, scattering bricks in every direction, and doing several hundreds of dollars worth of damage. The machine was also injured. The fire was in a negrotenement and did slight damage.

Before the engine crashed into the warehouse it struck, a wagon at Third and Main Streets. Richard Dickerson, the driver, and Wille Watson, who was on the wagon, were thrown to the curbing. Hickerson suffered a broken rib, and was taken to his home by Ambulance Surgeon Walker. It is said that the steering gear was not working properly at this time and that this fact was responsible for the accident.
